Detectives are still investigating what led up to Sarah Gomez (19) running over her 21-year-old boyfriend and their 7-month-old baby.

Police were called at 11:40 pm in reference to the incident. All three involved ended up at a local area hospital.

Based on the initial investigation, Gomez, her boyfriend and their 7-month-old baby were at a family gathering a few blocks away from their home. Gomez drove them home and ended up in the driveway of their residence in the 500 block of West D Street. An argument led to the boyfriend exiting the car and holding the baby.

Gomez was driving the car when she struck her boyfriend and their 7-month-old with the vehicle. All three were transported to the hospital by a family member. The baby did not survive her injuries and was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Detectives interviewed Gomez and impounded the car she was driving.
